

I firmly disagree with the ARRL's proposal. There is no need for a new entry-level license called 'for now' "Novice" when the codeless Technician class already exists. Also, I do not believe that lower class licensees should automatically be upgraded to higher levels without proper testing. Furthermore, the Morse requirement should not be dropped for the General class license. Again, I am adamantly opposed to RM-10867.

Sincerely,

Erik Dean, NI6G
